Alexandria Gazette.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 11, 1882.

THE POPULAR WOMAN. - The popular woman is very easy-going and largely tolerant. Next to her animal spirits this indulgent temper is her greatest charm. We feel at ease in her presence; there is no necessity to put one's best foot forward ; intellectually and morally we can keep on our slippers and relax the backbone of our principles. Her indulgence does not spring from the charity that "knoweth no evil," nor from the cynicism that believes in evil only, but from her knowledge of man and womankind. It is a knowledge not profound or subtle. but such as it is, it is varied and true. It has the advantage of being taken from nature; it is not second-hand, not derived from books or hearsay. This knowledge of human nature, skin-deep though it may be, gives her the inestimable talent of flattery. She does not contribute any flashes of wit to the conversation, any numbers of facts to the store of learning; but there is the crispness of originality in her remarks, a certain raciness of expression that gives piquancy to her phrases. A gift peculiar to her is a rapid appreciation of the wit of others; a power of seizing it, and throwing a gleam upon it that makes it evident to duller brains. She is not sarcastic, and never on the heights. Slow-witted and common-place folks do not fear her. She will not soar above the level of their comprehension, and she will not dart those shafts of irony-they have an uncomfortable feeling, their clever sisters occasionally level at them. Intellectual folk take pleasure in a companionship that is easy and not dull. It is an incontestible fact that people of intellect find relaxation in the society of those who do not require them to be always pumping their brains. They like gossip, and the popular woman is fond of gossip.—The Queen.
